You can define the falloff of the shadows, their color, and which parts of the image they cover. You can even apply effects to them, such as darkening the color, increasing the size of the falloff, and even adding noise. Figure 11-7 shows an example of a shading layer.

The Blob Brush creates shapes from colors in the image and allows you to manipulate those areas. You can paint anywhere on a canvas, and the image will be filled in with whatever is selected. The Polygonal Lasso tool allows you to select, move, rotate and scale areas of an image. The pattern can be either fixed or variable. For example, a circle will repeat the polygon pattern as you drag, whereas a square or ellipse will also draw a line. The Eraser is useful for removing background elements and objects that aren't necessary. It works like magic and it's easy to get carried away, especially if you want to erase an entire canvas. The Pen Tool allows you to draw lines and shapes on your canvas. You can even create freeform sketches. The Undo and History tools allow you to go back and forth in a sequence, and undo all steps you've made. The History tool allows you to go back in time to a specific position in your image, and it allows you to use those steps as a starting point for future actions. The Eraser can also be used as a History tool. The Smart Brush is very flexible and allows you to paint with a variety of paint and shape options. It is very useful for painting in specific areas, such as colors or a particular shape. It doesn't work the same as other painting tools because it doesn't have physical controls. The Paint Bucket fills in the area of an image with a single color. It is useful for eliminating elements in the background, which makes your image look cleaner and focused. The Gradient tool allows you to create color or gradient effects in your image. You can control the hue, saturation, and brightness of the effect. This is helpful for adding depth and complexity to your image. The Magic Wand tool selects the object in the image with a certain color based on the percentage of color in an image. The Color Range allows you to select a certain color in the image using a certain percentage. It's useful for making adjustments to specific colors. The Healing Brush tool works in a similar way as the Clone Stamp, allowing you to copy and paste pixels from one area to another. This tool allows you to fill in faded areas or corrupted objects. The Spot Healing Brush tool allows you to pinpoint areas of an image that are out of place. You can use it to remove red eye or fix areas where other parts

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop 2022 (Version 23.1)?

Google Assistant on Android now supports asking it to speak back, like Siri and Alexa Google Assistant on Android now supports asking it to speak back, like Siri and Alexa Google Assistant is getting a big update on Android today, with support for a new microphone button on the screen and a 'speak back' feature to make your queries heard by the AI assistant. Until now, using Google Assistant has meant repeatedly pressing 'Okay Google' on the virtual keyboard. When the Assistant has understood you, it will reply by typing out text from the Google search results, or read out your request. This often results in the assistant rattling off what a customer wants without actually understanding it. Additionally, it's slow to respond, as the text is typed by the assistant rather than spoken by a human. These problems might be a thing of the past, as Google has updated its OS with a new look for its Assistant app, and has included a microphone button on its virtual keyboard. Tap it to start a conversation with the assistant, just like on iOS and webOS. When you start the conversation, the Assistant will give you a small window explaining what it's doing and why. After a few seconds, the Google Assistant will respond verbally. "Hey Google, can you tell me what the weather is going to be like tomorrow?" is a perfect example. You can also just speak. "OK Google, tell me what the weather is going to be like tomorrow." also works, and this last one is the fastest for the assistant to pick up. On the downside, the text output still looks very much like text, with no auto-correct, formatting, or even emoji. However, the actual content is that of the Google search results, so it at least includes all the information the Assistant would normally give. The voice option is still quite slow, but is probably as good as you can get. The other major change with the update is the inclusion of a 'Hey Google' hotword detection. This works by listening for 'Hey Google' before and after the text you're asking for. When the Assistant 'hears' the hotword, it takes that text as a command, and matches it against the Google Search results. This means you don't have to press 'Okay Google' to make your queries heard, which allows the
