AutoCAD 2014 features a new "start" menu option called "Desktop View," which allows the creation of entire workspaces of 2D and 3D views, in addition to the traditional folder view. AutoCAD supports Windows clipboard, so that users may copy and paste information between Windows applications. This feature is useful in cases when the mouse cannot be used because it is blocked (e.g., by a drafting table or other such objects), for example when drafting is done in a helicopter or flying drone. The supporting application, such as AutoCAD, has a corresponding menu option called the "viewport menu" which lets users copy and paste information directly from the viewport.
